

Logo Design contest winner announced

Rian Hebdon, an eighth grade student at Glenwood Middle School submitted the winning design for the Loess Hills Humane Society's logo contest.

Rian combined her love of art and animals to create the design which the contest judges felt best represented the humane society's objectives while creating a unique emblem to represent LHHS.

Rian received a $100 savings bond from LHHS, Inc., a $25 gift certificate from Joe Designer, and membership in LHHS. A plaque recognizing Rian and her work will be placed in the entrance of the animal shelter.

Photo information: Jane Susgin, President of LHHS, Inc. presented a certificate of recognition to Rian Hebdon. Also pictured is John Buetel, Glenwood Middle School art instructor.

Honorable Mention designations were awarded to Emily Austin, East Mills High School, Leora Darrah, Glenwood High School, Joshua Durbin, East Mills High School, and Danielle Russell, Glenwood Elementary.